Hmmm... isn't it the same size as all the other texts in the dialog? Increasing font size in the operating system should increase it in the dialogs too.

No. Today, user friendly programs in text editing areas use a font with at least 9 pt size, or they have an option to customize the font size for text editing areas. This is because large screens today are much more popular than 10 years ago.

Rainlendar uses 8 pt font size in the text editing area of the Task/Event window, which is too small on a large screen:

While an other well known program uses 9 pt font size in its text editing area:

In other programs, the font size for text editing areas is OK, so I will not increase the system font size. The only program where the font size in text editing areas is too small is Rainlendar.

So please add an option in Rainlendar to set a custom font size for text editing areas!
