When are changes to Google Calendar being written?

Posted by capturable - 2012/10/08 09:18

Hi,

I've got 2.11b124 latest Beta. I'm sort of puzzled. If I set all Events to "public" in that bulk actions window, then click OK. Then it asks me "do you really want to do this on 155 events" - I click yes.

It's a Google Calendar. I wait. After a few seconds, I rightclick "refresh". I look at an event and see, it's still private.

In Google Calendar, I've seen some have refreshed, but some have not and are still private.

- When does Rainlendar upload to Google
- Do I have any kind of indicator about when Rainlendar up/downloads
- Whats best practise then?
- Are there problems with concurrent opens (i.e., Rainlendar is open AND the Google Calendar page as well)

Additional question: If I add an alarm, won't this go to the Google Calendar? So far my alarm settings for an event didn't make it to Google calendar.

TIA!

Michael

==========

Re:When are changes to Google Calendar being written?

Posted by capturable - 2012/10/09 09:02

OK I've set the option "CLose dialog only after transfer completed" (don't know the exact wording, my Rainlendar speaks german)

WORKS LIKE A CHARM. Yeah, I do not regret to have bought a license :)

Michael

==========

Re:When are changes to Google Calendar being written?

Posted by Rainy - 2012/10/09 11:16

There is also a small progress spinner in the Rainlendar's tray icon shown while it is communicating with online calendars.

==========