Possible to share 1 ICS file in Home Network Envir

Posted by beck13 - 2009/07/10 02:15

_____

hi,

i've been using rainlendar pro for a while now, it's great but i still haven't been able to figure out something...

basically i have several computers at home and 1 computer is on 24-7 (running xp pro) and i use it as a file and printer server (no actual server softwares installed on it though) and i want my rainlendar on the other computers to load the ics file from the network (//server/rainlendar/.ics) is this possible? it seems like a very simple thing but i've been seeing few threads saying stuff like installing server software, and i really want to avoid that

cheers

beck13

==

Re:Possible to share 1 ICS file in Home Network Envir

Posted by Arne Anka - 2009/07/10 03:33

_____

Well, I can't test it - have no network. But I guess it should be possible, adding a new calendar to Rainlendar and pointing it to the //server/rainlendar/.ics

==