Recurring tasks and show in calendar

I am evaluating the Rainlendar pro version with a view to purchasing it but I have 2 questions.

I am only syncing from one calendar- Toodledo.

I have several recurring daily tasks and am not bothered about the alarm function at all.

I have created online within Toodledo 30 recurring tasks.

On the Rainlendar todo list on my desktop, only today's tasks show up. I cannot see the recurring tasks in the immediately following days so cannot trust the todo list.

I have tried deleting today's tasks but the repeating tasks don't show up on the following day.

This one issue is stopping me purchasing the pro version. I have to be able to trust that Rainlendar tells me everything Toodledo knows.

There seems to be an option in settings- show tasks in calendar - but when I tick this the event box on my desktop is still empty.I thought maybe showing the toodledo tasks in the event box may solve my above problem.

Would appreciate clarification on these issues. Thanks.

Rainlendar's task list always shows the current instance of a recurring task. The task list does not have a possibility to define a day range so all instances cannot be shown since the list would be infinite if a recurring task did not have a end date for the recurrence.

Thank for your reply.

Does this mean that if I put an end date 1 year from now, the task will show in every day.

I have purchased the pro version and am using Google calendar but I prefer Toodledo.

Would appreciate your reply on this point. Thanks again.

If you create a recurring task with end date one year from now you will still see only one task in the list. If you mark it completed the task list which then start to show the next instance of the task and so on.

Hi
Could you tell me how to position the application at a particular point on the desktop. It is currently right in the middle and i need it on the right bottom corner.

Just click and hold the window and move it where you want it to be.
