outlook write?
Posted by stubadub - 2006/10/29 09:33

Are you planning on supporting writing events to outlook and/or gcal? That, if possible, would be a wonderful feature for rl. In fact, quite crucial for me as there's no real update on the outlook support on v2 and therefore rl version 1 suits me better.

==========

Re:outlook write?
Posted by Rainy - 2006/10/29 12:46

I have some plans but I don't know when I have time to implement them and in what order. I'll probably have to add a poll about the future development to the front page so the users can decide what is needed the most.

==========

Re:outlook write?
Posted by hal9001 - 2006/10/29 13:32

Well, even before the poling begins you'll probably note the really heavy dealing done with version 1 on working with gCal. Personally, it's the only calendar I use. Rainlendar merely serves as an offline mirror of this. The ability to post items to it would be more thyan greatly appreciated.

==========

Re:outlook write?
Posted by GeXX - 2006/11/06 06:20

Well, i can't believe...
I found this tool, looks good... :woohoo: and i've installed the professional one. I saw that the "OK-button" isnt activated. So then i payed for a licence and now at least i will informed that rainlendar cant write any outlook-items?

I think this should be priority #1 for all registered users! Forget all other suggestions, design and so on. This is a main-functionality! :angry: Please implement it! Thanks!

Post edited by: GeXX, at: 2006/11/06 06:21

Post edited by: GeXX, at: 2006/11/06 06:22

Post edited by: GeXX, at: 2006/11/06 06:23

==========