Note that since this is the first release for the Remember The Milk plugin it might sometimes behave unexpectedly so use with caution.

Well, probably just a feature, but it sure act in different ways on WinXP and PC/OS (based on Xubuntu).

I bought Ranlendar yesterday and saw this beta had the RTM plug in included. When I downloaded the beta build and extracted the files to the Rainlendar folder at each refresh and launch I got a screen message saying that some DLLs etc were only supposed to be used with original files.

Apart from that I could see the RTM entries.

Is there anything I am doing wrong in extraction or is this beta behaviour.

Arne Anka, you have "Show full task summary" and "Shot task calendar" set to No in PC/OS which is the reason the lists are shown differently.

kevincumbria, extracting the files over you installation is enough. What is the exact error message you get?

Hi

The error messages are:

Invalid Plugins Found

The followoing files in Rainlendar's Plugins folder are invalid and should be remnoved

C:\Program Files\Rainlendar2\plugins\GooglePlugins_1.dll
C:\Program Files\Rainlendar2\plugins\CalendarPlugin_1.dll
C:\Program Files\Rainlendar2\plugins\InFormatPlugin_1.dll
C:\Program Files\Rainlendar2\plugins\NetworkPlugin_1.dll
C:\Program Files\Rainlendar2\plugins\OutlookPlugin_1.dll
C:\Program Files\Rainlendar2\plugins\RTMPlugin.dll

If I delete these and refresh Rainlendar just the RTM plugin is identified as invalid.

You cannot leave the old dll files to the plugins folder when you install the beta since Rainlendar tries to load them too. The RTM plugin should work though so I suggest that you try to reinstall the beta.

If I delete just the plugin files and extracted all the files, I still got the same error message. If I deleted all plugin files and all the files in the parent folder and reinstalled the beta, the program works perfectly. There are no error messages and Rainlendar picks up the RTM stuff. Bliss!

Creating an RTM task in Rainlendar, sets the due date to january 1st 1970 in RTM.

Found the problem. The due date should work again in the next build. I'll have to figure out some way to store the start date too since RTM tasks don't have it.

Having issues adding RTM. When I click "add" and then "Remember the Milk", I get a long pause followed by a popup that says "Remember the Milk Error! Unable to Parse Output". If I hit OK, it gives me the option to select my RTM lists, and then choose a name.

Once I exit the options, it tries to load RTM and I get another "unable to parse outputs" followed by "Authentication token is missing. You need to give Rainlendar access to your Remember The Milk Account". But I'm not ever given the option to enter my username/password.

The RTM's server seems to return 503 error (Service currently unavailable) at the moment.

They seem to be having extended issues -- I was able to authorize this morning, but I'm not pulling any of my tasks (I've tried leaving it blank to pull all lists, and creating special lists for it to pull with no change in results). Hopefully they'll be back up to full operation soon!
