The events don't support all the fields which are in the tasks so it's not possible to change the type of the item.

What about stripping that extra-information (and may be putting it at the end of the "remarks"-section)?

Yes, it certainly would be possible to do that but I'm not really sure what the use case is for this.

This we would have to ask crazy.dug.

May be something like this: You expect a bill and put it on your to-do-list. Then at some point it arrives in your mail and you then convert the to-do-entry to an event with the known due-date. Would that make sense?
