I have rainlendar Pro and i was wondering which online calendar I should use to be able to sync both to and from it. I hear google can't be auto written to. But I hear that 30 boxes can but I can't figure out how to set it up.

Well, you might have gotten the 30 boxes from one of my posts and taking a look at their feature list I don't see webdav mentioned. I'm not finding a free webdav hosting out there. You can host your own with apache and I found this pay for service one. Rainy has thought about supporting the google api from within Rainlendar so that people can have write access.

Try iCal Exchange (<http://www.icalx.com>).
