
Tooltip Header/Item Shadows

Posted by Rodger - 2011/03/25 08:23

Is it possible to have two headers and 2 items for an entry in the tooltip?

What I need to do is make a drop shadow that is one pixel up and under the main entry.

I know about the shadow effect, but it only goes down. So for my shadows I've been making another layer under for text elements and changing the color for the shadow.

=====

Re: Tooltip Header/Item Shadows

Posted by Rainy - 2011/03/26 06:29

The tooltip is a special case so it's possible to have the texts only once in it. I could probably add an offset attribute for the font shadow which would allow you to define it's position.

=====

Re: Tooltip Header/Item Shadows

Posted by Rodger - 2011/03/26 07:33

That would be a welcome addition Rainy.

If I may be so bold as to ask for a little more on the shadows ...

Would it be possible to add a spread/blur to the shadow?

Basically, it would be handy to be able to have the shadow's blur be definable, so if we want it sharp we can set it to "0" or fuzzy "5" ... similar to CSS text shadows I guess.

=====

Re: Tooltip Header/Item Shadows

Posted by Rainy - 2011/03/29 11:00

Blurring takes a little more effort so I can't promise that but if I have some free time I can check if it's doable.

=====