
Some errors in Lithuanian translation in skin imgs

Posted by zledas - 2011/06/27 13:09

Hello,
first of all - than you for a great application.
I started using it few days ago, and I think I'll be using it from now on.

I do not know if this forum or the e-mail is a place to write such issues, so I'm writing here.
I'm using Lithuanian language with translated skin, but the problem is that some translations in skin images (.png files) are incorrect and some have wrong characters (encoding problems). I've "fixed" them for myself using photoshop and image manipulation, but it is not perfect and it would be nice to have official version of the translation fixed. I can provide information (.png file names with wrong texts and corrected texts) of what should be corrected, but I do not know where should I submit such information (translations page does not seem to have a place to upload corrected texts for skin images translation - if I missed it, please point me to the right place).

Once again - thanks for a great application.

=====

Re: Some errors in Lithuanian translation in skin imgs

Posted by Rainy - 2011/06/29 11:05

You can attach the corrections to here or send them to the Rainlendar's support address.

=====