
\\"Hide completed tasks\\" is unchecked after reboot

Posted by jonolumb - 2011/08/05 04:29

Version: 2.9 (b109) 32 bit

Ubuntu: 11.04 Natty

I have my Rainlendar synchronised with Remember the Milk. When I complete tasks, they show up with a grey background in the task window. In order to hide these completed tasks, I then check the "Hide completed tasks" option by right-clicking on the window - the said tasks are then no longer visible.

However, upon reboot, these completed tasks are once again visible and it seems that this setting has been forgotten after restarting Rainlendar.

Does anybody have any idea why this is the case?

Thanks

Re: \\"Hide completed tasks\\" is unchecked after reboot

Posted by Rainy - 2011/08/07 13:01

If you check the option and restart Rainlendar does it get unchecked in that case too?

Re: \\"Hide completed tasks\\" is unchecked after reboot

Posted by jonolumb - 2011/08/08 18:25

Yup... just tried that now and Rainlendar is still not remembering the setting.

Re: \\"Hide completed tasks\\" is unchecked after reboot

Posted by Rainy - 2011/08/09 11:23

Hmmm... I tried this but I cannot reproduce the problem. Is the "Hide completed tasks" the only setting that doesn't get remembered? Is the setting written correctly to the rainlendar2.ini file (you can find it in ~/.config/.rainlendar2 and the setting is called TodoListHideCompleted)?

Re: \\"Hide completed tasks\\" is unchecked after reboot

Posted by jonolumb - 2011/08/09 13:34

Other settings are also not being remembered (for example, all three "hide" options in the menu). It seems that they are not being written to the rainlendar2.ini file. I changed the options manually in this file and restarted and everything is now working - but at the moment it seems that the right-click menu is not changing this .ini file at all.

Re: \\"Hide completed tasks\\" is unchecked after reboot

Posted by Rainy - 2011/08/10 10:55

Could you try this with the b110? There was one bugfix which caused the settings not to be saved in certain situation so it could affect also this case.

Re:"Hide completed tasks\" is unchecked after reboot

Posted by jonolumb - 2011/08/10 13:10

Perfect!

Everything working as it should with b110

Thanks for the fix :laugh:

=====