

---

Viewing tasks by day? Any Skin? Or Script?

Posted by DesperateForGTD - 2012/02/26 19:30

---

I manage several personal projects, so when planning them i need a windows freeware that shows my tasks and appointments for an specific day... Let's say i'm planning a party, so i need to see which days have less tasks and appointments in order to add taks (such as buying cake, designing invitations...)to THAT day... i need something like these:

Opus domini (only for mac)

<http://main.makeuseoflimited.netdna-cdn.com/wp-content/uploads/2011/03/Opus-Domini.png>

Outlook task and appointments management ($100 USD or so + another 100 for the complete bundle of MS Office)

<http://img842.imageshack.us/img842/5807/captura2n.png>

Till now, rainlendar is the BEST of my choices as it has many feature i'm looking for, except from the above explained... Because i can get to see the tasks for today, but not for the other days... it would be wonderfull if i could click "29" on my calendar, and see all the tasks planned for that day... so i was wondering if there was any skin or script to do so!!

If not, do you know any freeware you can recomend?

thanks!

=====

---

Re: Viewing tasks by day? Any Skin? Or Script?

Posted by Rainy - 2012/03/03 04:08

---

There is no script which would do that but you can sort the task list e.g. by the due date and Rainlendar will group the list so that you see the tasks for each day. The sorting options can be accessed by right clicking one of the tasks in the list.

=====