
Does rainlendar have a log file?

Posted by rhino - 2012/04/09 21:33

Is there a log file in RL? something that logs stuff like event dismissed at , event snooze , etc?

The reason I'm asking is if by accident an action is selected, the user can look up the log to find out what was done?

=====

Re: Does rainlendar have a log file?

Posted by sausi - 2012/04/11 06:17

Here --> http://www.rainlendar.net/cms/index.php?option=com_easyfaq&Itemid=26#faq21

Where is Rainlendar's log file?

Written by Kimmo Pekkola

The log file (rainlendar2.log) is located in the same folder as the settings (see above FAQ item). If you did a portable installation the log will be written in the installation folder.

You can get more logging information if you give "--debug" command line argument for the application. On Windows the debugging can be also enabled by starting Rainlendar from the "Debug Rainlendar" shortcut on the Rainlendar's program folder. On Mac you need to start the application from the Terminal like this: /Applications/Rainlendar2-Pro.app/Contents/MacOS/Rainlendar2-Pro --debug

=====

Re:Does rainlendar have a log file?

Posted by rhino - 2012/04/15 02:06

Windows is my OS. Thanks for the advice, will try it.

Cheers,

=====