
Hourly event reoccurrence not possible?

Posted by Audience - 2012/07/04 03:42

Hi and thank you for providing such a nice tool! :-)

I am currently searching for a reminder that comes hourly, which I can set through the standard user interface. Currently it seems that the smallest amount of time which can be set as a reoccurrence is 'daily'. As a programmer I would like to interrupt my work every hour to make a quick 5 minutes fitness workout... therefore I am searching for the possibility to set an hourly intervall as a reoccurrence.

Could you extend the reoccurrence-selection so that it can be set using minutes, hours, days, ... ?

Thank you in advance for your reply!

Sincerely, Daniel Pavic

Welcome to the forum, Daniel.

Unfortunately, Rainlendar doesn't have any less-than-daily recurrence. Here's the reason:

There are 2 things you can do, create 24 events or with the O.S. task scheduler. Maybe the first option is better because you can use the alarm window, also, you can use the "Save as new" from the new event dialog to make them faster.

Hi Jorge,

thank you for your quick reply!

As a programmer I understand the reason - as a user this is quite sad since the alternative using several daily events is pretty cumbersome and using OS task scheduler does not make me happy either. I really like your tool... big bummer!

Anyway, thanks again for your quick reply - and I would be happy if you took into consideration to update the internal event logic making hourly or minutely events possible!

Sincerely, Daniel Pavic

Thanks for your thanks, but I'm not the programmer of Rainlendar, that honor goes to Rainy. I'm just an amateur programmer who made skins for Rainlendar...
