Problem editing Toodledo tasks

I get this error when I try to change an existing Toodledo task:

Call "tasks/add.php" failed:
You didn't send any tasks to add.

Does this happen with all tasks or just one of them? Do you have the offline copy enabled for the calendar? If yes, does the error go away if you disable the offline copy and refresh Rainlendar?

I had this problem at work, but trying it now at home, I don't get the problem regardless of whether I have offline copy enabled or not.

I'll try it again at work on Monday and let you know how it goes, if it makes a difference I have to use the proxy setting at work, which works fine for my ical calendar.

Hrrmmm, don't get the problem at work any more... so I guess it's nothing to do with Rainlendar, would have either been some local connection issue or an issue on Toodledos end.

Ok I think I've solved this mystery after seeing this post, it's a problem on Toodledos end not Rainlendars: this fault occurs when putting certain special characters (the '&' in my case) into the summary or details of a task. I haven't gone through and figured out which characters cause it though, I've only tried the ampersand.

So Rainy, you might want to stop Rainlendar from allowing those special characters when creating a Toodledo task, or at least warn the user in some way.

Ok I now know a bit more of this, there might be a problem on Rainlendars end after all.

I get the problem not only with the ampersand, but also if I add a new line in the details part of the task. Checking the task on Toodledo, any change to a task which gets the You didn't send any tasks to add error in Rainlendar doesn't show up to Toodledo, however I was able to use ampersands and new lines when I edited the same task on an Android app I have, and this time my change did show up on Toodledo.

Double quote seems to causing problems too as are few other special characters too. I'll try to fix the encoding problems in the next build.
