The file paths in the config file are probably not the same as in your other computer. You should only import the default.ics file from the backup archive and not transfer the settings.

I have problems too. I reinstalled Windows, installed Rainlendar Pro 2.10 x64 (with license) and when I restore my backup file, many different problems occur. I tried uninstalling and reinstalling but still happen.

I guess it's got to do with some conflict with Google Calendar settings or so.

So, the data are there, sort of restored, I can see the appointments and to dos but for example when I write a new event I get this window:

What can I do?

Thanks

EDIT: Maybe this is the problem? When I open Google Calendar it says that the service is not available at the moment.

EDIT 2: OK, seems to be fixed. I deleted the Google Calendar and added it again with the password again. Also Google Calendar on web seems to be working fine again.
