
Google Calendar Sync Problem

Posted by emeyer197 - 2013/03/10 19:40

Installed Rainlendar2 Pro x64 for the first time on a Windows 8 machine and tried to sync it with a small Google calendar I use to keep track of birthdays just to test it out. Got the following popup error message:

```
Google Error (Birthdays)!
Unable to authenticate to Google.
Server returned result: (0) 200 OK.

```

The events on the Google calendar are not displayed in Rainlendar. I've tried to attach the log file, but it seems to be too large and the entry for the attempted Google connection shows the same information as the popup message. Any ideas on what could be causing the problem?

I got exactly the same problem ("Unable to authenticate to Google") with Google Calendar on latest version of Rainlendar. First it stopped updating, showing cached information, but no changes. Then I tried re-adding all my calendars and it simply won't re-add them showing this error message: <http://imm.io/YVx3>
I mean, it might be a Google issue, but maybe Rainlendar needs some changes on it's side due to changes on Google's. Don't know. But would be great if anyone could be so kind to have a look into this pronto :)

Thanks so much in advance!

Upgraded to the latest version (2.11.1 Windows 8 64bit), and now I can not sync calendars with Google?!

It's actually a very good point. I've just tried downgrading to Rainlendar 2.11 BETA build 127, and everything works fine. So it's a bug introduced in v2.11.1 then, I assume.

There was a small issue with the 64bit build. I recompiled the application so please download the installer again and reinstall.

And that did the trick. Whatever was causing the "200 OK" message is gone and the calendar (and Google Tasks, too) synced without error. Quickly, too, I might add. Thanks for the prompt response!

Redownloaded, reinstalled, solved! Thanks so much!
