Google calendar option to list only headline

I make great use of the Month View. When Google calendar events are pulled in, the tooltip and, I assume, the event box in the Month View include data from the Google event name, location, and description. The can be too much for the box to hold, in which case it's blank. I'd like the option to pull into the event box only the event name, so that I'd have a chance of more events showing their names in the Month View. Showing all the info in the tooltip is fine. I have no idea whether Google provides you with the data in a form that will allow this.

Thanks.

Only Google calendar ?

All calendars should be the same way appeared on Month View !

You can change the appear way, from :

Options > Advanced > section, uncheck which you dont want to appear.

Hmm, I suspect this isn't under your control, but here's what I'm talking about, and why I'm singling out Google: In a Google calendar event, there are several fields: Event title, Where, calendar, and Description. I find that if I turn off Rainlendar Options > Advanced > Schedule > Show Schedule Descriptions, it stops displaying the event title as well as what Google calls the description, so that all the boxes in Month View are blank. If I turn on Show Schedule Descriptions, it turns the title on, but also displays the Google Description, which can be quite long, so if there's no room to display the whole thing, the box is, once again, blank. I'd like to display just the event title, but maybe Google doesn't supply that to you by itself.

Good grief, you're right! I played with options a little, but mostly made the Month View gigantic, and it works as expected. Thanks. This is on MacOS Mountain Lion.

OP. Maybe I spoke too soon. With Options > Advanced > Schedule > Show Schedule Descriptions turned to OFF, I get no titles showing in the Month View. With it turned to ON, I get titles except when the Google description is too long. Or maybe I'm still not understanding something.

Have you made some changes to the categories? The events which are not shown in the calendar are actually shown but the text color is almost the same as background so it is difficult to notice.

In Options > Skins > Categories, I had the Category's Schedule Text Color set to the same thing as the Schedule Background color so it was invisible. Sorry. :blush:
