
How to change bottom color

Posted by hilfer - 2013/04/18 13:10

This may be a dumb question but I would like to change bottom color of the present day. The one I have is grey and I would like it to have a more noticeable color. Can this be done ??

Welcome to the forum, hilfer.

First of all, which skin are you using?

Is it only the current day with a grey color? or you mean all days?

If is one the current day, do you have any task or event? of which category?

Hi Jorge_Luis:

The skin I use is CHROMOPHORE.

I am refering to the ground color of the current day, which has a lighter grey than the other days. I would like to make it more visible. There's no task events, as I said I would like to make the current day number or the ground color more visible.

are you portuguese ??

I think there's no way by options to change the color of the today marker in the Chromophore skin, although it could be done editing the image file e.g. c:\Program Files\Rainlendar2\skins\Chromophore.r2skin\images\today.png (it has alpha channel). r2skin is a zip file.

no, I'm argentinian.

Thanks Jorge for your assistance.

I found an easy way to do it.

Changed to another skin whose "present day" ground color is black.

That way the present day is always very noticeable.
