

---

Bring back some old options

Posted by wroot - 2014/01/12 06:43

---

I liked when every event in the alarms window had it separate snooze and dismiss buttons (though they could be larger). Now i have to right click or click on 3 dots and then go to dismiss or snooze menu entry. Two click and looking for a right menu entry instead of one simple click.

99% of my events are tied to time. Now new event defaults to all day event, so every time i have to uncheck this checkbos and then set the time.

Can the have options to bring back those buttons and change the default for events?

=====

Re: Bring back some old options

Posted by Rainy - 2014/01/12 10:41

---

It is possible to use the previous version of the skin. You can download e.g. one of the older beta versions and extract the Shadow4.r2skin from the zip file and copy it to Rainlendar's skins folder.

The default for new events was all day event previously too. The change in 2.12 was that the time fields are now hidden. You can create an event template which unchecks the "all day" setting and set it as the default template if you want to have it the other way.

=====