

---

outlook write?

Posted by stubadub - 2006/10/29 09:33

---

Are you planning on supporting writing events to outlook and/or gcal? That, if possible, would be a wonderful feature for rl. In fact, quite crucial for me as there's no real update on the outlook support on v2 and therefore rl version 1 suits me better.

=====

Re:outlook write?

Posted by Rainy - 2006/10/29 12:46

---

I have some plans but I don't know when I have time to implement them and in what order. I'll probably have to add a poll about the future development to the front page so the users can decide what is needed the most.

=====

Re:outlook write?

Posted by hal9001 - 2006/10/29 13:32

---

Well, even before the polling begins you'll probably note the really heavy dealing done with version 1 on working with gCal. Personally, it's the only calendar I use. Rainlendar merely serves as an offline mirror of this. The ability to post items to it would be more than greatly appreciated.

=====

Re:outlook write?

Posted by GeXX - 2006/11/06 06:20

---

Well, i can't believe...

I found this tool, looks good... :woohoo: and i've installed the professional one. I saw that the "OK-button" isn't activated. So then i payed for a licence and now at least i will informed that rainlendar cant write any outlook-items?

I think this should be priority #1 for all registered users! Forget all other suggestions, design and so on. This is a main-functionality! :angry: Please implement it! Thanks!

Post edited by: GeXX, at: 2006/11/06 06:21

Post edited by: GeXX, at: 2006/11/06 06:22

Post edited by: GeXX, at: 2006/11/06 06:23

=====