

---

syncing to google calendar without pro

Posted by rocker9455 - 2008/12/09 16:13

---

Hi,
I know this might sound extremely scroungy of me (im currently in high school, this would be very useful for me but im very poor at the moment hehe) but is there anyway i can upload my events to google calender from rainlendar, im currently using GCAL Daemon to sync from google calendar to rainlendar, unfortunatly it cant sync back :( any ideas how i could accomplish this?

Thanks,
Will

---

Re:syncing to google calendar without pro

Posted by bread - 2008/12/10 03:51

---

what about buying it together and sharing it?

But i'm not sure if a license can be used by several persons

---

Re:syncing to google calendar without pro

Posted by Arne Anka - 2008/12/10 09:38

---

A license is personal.

---

Re:syncing to google calendar without pro

Posted by rocker9455 - 2008/12/10 15:23

---

i just really cant afford it :( anyone an opensource way always seems to intrigue me more! :D anyone?

---

Re:syncing to google calendar without pro

Posted by bread - 2008/12/10 20:02

---

it's too expensive for me, too..
So if you get sth is opensource and easy to use, plz let me know ;)

---

Re:syncing to google calendar without pro

Posted by vwilson - 2008/12/11 09:30

---

If I was the developer and read a thread like this I would be so depressed. Do you have any idea how much time and energy must have been invested in writing a tool like this?

1. Perhaps this depends what school you're in, but if you're old enough to need a calendar synced to Google, you're old enough to have ten euros stashed somewhere.
2. A lesson worth learning early; money matters, limits, enables, provides security etc. etc. Find a way to make ten euros. Learn that now, and you'll be one step ahead of everyone else in your class for the rest of your lives.

Worth asking, but unfortunate as it is you're going to have to save some pocket money.

---

V

=====

Re:syncing to google calendar without pro

Posted by bread - 2008/12/11 09:46

---

Hi,

1. I'm a computer science major and I know exactly how much time and efforts need to be made before a software was finally produced. Actually I asked if there will be a discount for students before, because 9.95 EUR is really too much for me in China. Actually, it's nearly 100 Yuan here (Microsoft Office Students Edition is less than 200 Yuan). And the license is only for 2.x version.

2. I really think sync to Google calendar is a basic feature, actually many other free softwares can provide this feature, but other features of them are not as good as Rainlendar. Such as multi-os, appearance, etc. And I've used Rainlendar for 4~5 years, I just do not want to change.

3. I think there're some cracked version. I do not want to use them because I think it's illegal. And I'm glad to make contributions to Rainlendar if I can have a discount for these. Or it will be better to have a student edition.

=====

Re:syncing to google calendar without pro

Posted by rocker9455 - 2008/12/11 15:18

---

fair enough v, im sorry, close the thread

=====