

---

Creating Skins

Posted by mobius1 - 2009/03/12 22:21

---

I've just been changing the code in other people's configs and was just wondering how i can create my own folder so i can have everything named properly. I tried making my own folder and I copied the config file into it with a new name. I loaded the config and it gave me an error and didn't show anything. I also tried renaming the config files so that I'd know what each one was (I have a bar on the bottom of my screen and its labeled HD). Do I have to add the config names to another Rainmeter file?

=====

Re:Creating Skins

Posted by Rainy - 2009/03/13 15:57

---

Copying the file to a separate folder is enough so there is something wrong with the file contents if Rainmeter isn't able to read it.

=====